SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

ROBERT C. WOMACK,

Plaintiff.

METROPOLITAN TRANSIT SYSTEM, et al..

Defendants.

Case No. 09cv2679 BTM(NLS)

ORDER GRANTING MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Defendants Metropolitan Transit System (“MTS”) and San Diego Trolley, Inc. (“SDTI”), have filed a motion for summary judgment, or in the alternative, partial summary judgment. For the reasons discussed below, Defendants’ motion is GRANTED.

I. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

In September 2005, SDTI hired Plaintiff, Robert C. Womack, as a Code Compliance Inspector (“CCI”). (Womack Dep. (Def.’s Ex. 1) 34:3-10.) As a CCI, Womack’s job duties included enforcing the ordinances of SDTI, issuing citations, making arrests, preparing incident and arrest reports, and testifying in court regarding arrests and violations. (Womack Dep. 34:11-35:18; Burke Decl. ¶ 2.) CCIs are not police officers, do not carry weapons, and are not in any way affiliated with the police department. (Burke Decl. ¶ 2.)

During Womack's training, Womack received a copy of the SDTI Rules and

1 Instructions for employees and agreed to comply with the rules. (Womack Dep. 37:5-8.) 2 Womack understood that failure to comply with the rules could result in discipline, up to and 3 including discharge. (Womack Dep. 37:10-13.) SDTI's Standard Operating Procedures 4 include the following provisions: Section 1.4.7 (prohibits employees from falsifying any 5 statement or record); SOP 600.1(1) (provides that employees shall not violate any laws, 6 whether on or off SDTI premises, which may have an adverse impact on the reputation or 7 operations of SDTI); SOP 600.1(4) (prohibits unbecoming conduct, both on and off duty, 8 which brings SDTI into disrepute or tends to impair the operation and efficiency of SDTI); 9 and SOP 600.1(41) (requires truthfulness when asked questions by any SDTI supervisor or 10 manager). (Def.'s Ex. 9.)

11

12 A. Canine-Handler Interview

13 On May 2, 2007, Womack interviewed for an SDTI canine-handler position, which 14 involved handling and housing "bomb-sniffing" dogs. (Womack Dep. 49:5-7; Parham Decl.
 15 ¶ 2.) The interview was with William Burke (Director of Transit Security), Lawrence Savoy 16 (Assistant Director of Transit Security), and Sgt. Len Parham (Canine and Code Compliance 17 Supervisor), and a TSA representative. (Womack Dep. 44:1-12.) During the interview, 18 Womack was asked to describe the type of residence in which he resided to determine if he 19 could accommodate the dogs. (Womack Dep. 49:8-15.) Womack responded that he had 20 a three-bedroom house in the Santee area with a fenced-in yard. (Womack Dep. 49:16-18.)

21 After the interview, Parham followed up with Womack to arrange a visit to Womack's 22 house. (Parham Decl. ¶ 3.) Initially, Womack told Parham that he could come by his house.
 23 (Id.) A short time later, Womack called Parham and told him that he did not actually live in 24 the house he previously described but had planned to rent the house. (Id.) Womack also 25 told Parham that the agreement to rent the house had fallen through. (Id.) Womack was 26 actually living in an apartment. (Id.) Parham informed Burke and Savoy that Womack had 27 lied during the interview. (Id.)

28 On May 4, 2007, Burke and Savoy met with Womack. (Burke Decl. ¶ 6.) Womack

1 claimed that he mis-spoke during the interview because he was nervous. (Id.) Womack 2 explained that although he did not live in a house, he was in the process of trying to rent a 3 house, and had even given the landlord a deposit check. (Id.) The agreement, however, 4 had fallen through. (Id.) Burke offered Womack a chance to show him a copy of his deposit 5 check or a rental agreement to prove that he was not lying. (Burke Decl. ¶ 7.) Womack 6 refused to do so and withdrew his name from consideration. (Id.) According to Womack, 7 he refused to produce evidence of the rental agreement because his financial information 8 is private and does not concern anyone else. (Womack Dep. 61:5-9.)

9 Womack was issued a two-day unpaid suspension for his dishonesty in the canine 10 interview. (Burke Decl. ¶ 8.) Womack did not grieve the suspension and signed his 11 discipline letter. (Burke Decl. ¶ 8; Def.'s Ex. 16.)

13 B. Avalon Incident

14 Avalon Home Care ("Avalon") is a local business that provides home care services 15 for elderly or disabled individuals. (Brown Decl. ¶ 1; Baratti Decl. ¶ 1.) Marcus Brown and 16 Junie Baratti own Avalon. (Id.)

17 On or about April 23, 2007, Womack left a message on Brown's cell phone. Womack 18 claimed to be the son-in-law of an Avalon client, Mary LaDuc, and alleged that Ms. LaDuc's 19 caretaker had stolen some of her cash. The recorded message stated:

20 Hello, my name is Robert Womack. I'm the son-in-law of Mary LaDuc and we 21 need to talk to you about what happened here. We're finding some more 22 problems here at Mary's house and I was – my understanding is she – you're 23 going to come over here today to return some money that was stolen from 24 Mary. I want to tell you I'm also with the law enforcement. I'm a police officer and I'm going to be conducting an investigation with my department. I think the best thing for you to do as soon as you can is get ahold of me or Dodie as soon as possible. I'm going to try and page you and then I will return your phone call to you.

25 (Womack Dep. 126:13-127:9; Brown Decl. ¶ 3.)

26 Brown and Baratti returned Womack's call that same day. (Brown Decl. ¶ 4; Baratti 27 Decl. ¶ 3.) Womack accused an Avalon caregiver of stealing his mother-in-law's petty cash, 28 and stated that based on his experience in criminal matters, it appeared that the caregiver

1 was guilty of theft. (Id.) Womack said that he would be dusting for fingerprints and warned 2 Brown and Baratti that they could be charged criminally in connection with the matter. (Id.)
 3 Womack also inquired about whether Avalon conducts criminal background checks on its 4 caregivers. (Brown Decl. ¶ 4; Baratti Decl. ¶ 4.) Although Avalon normally would not release
 5 criminal background reports without the consent of the subject employee, Brown and Baratti 6 provided background check information on a few Avalon employees to Womack because 7 they thought that Womack was a police officer. (Id.) Later, Brown and Baratti discovered 8 that Womack was not Ms. LaDuc's son-in-law or a police officer. (Brown Decl. ¶ 5; Baratti 9 Decl. ¶ 5.)

10 On May 4, 2007, Brown went to the San Diego Police Department to file a complaint 11 against Womack for misrepresenting himself as a police officer and threatening Avalon and 12 himself. (Brown Decl. ¶ 6.) The police told Brown to file his complaint directly with SDTI.
 13 (Id.) Accordingly, Brown went to SDTI's office and met with Burke, Savoy, and Sgt. Dave 14 Adams. (Id.) Brown played Womack's voicemail message for them and described the 15 subsequent phone conversation he had with Womack. (Id.)

16 On May 11, 2007, Savoy met with Womack to discuss Avalon's complaint. (Savoy 17 Decl. ¶ 7.) Womack denied that he represented himself as a police officer or threatened an 18 investigation by his department, although he did admit that he was not actually the son-in-law 19 of Ms. LaDuc. (Id.) Upon being confronted with the recording of the voicemail, Womack 20 said that he did not hear the recording clearly and that he did not remember specifically 21 representing himself as a law enforcement officer or police officer. (Def.'s Ex. 18.) Savoy 22 reported the results of the interview to Burke. (Savoy Decl. ¶ 7.)

23

24 C. Termination and Post-Termination Proceedings

25 On September 21, 2007, SDTI issued Womack a Notice of Intent to Terminate 26 Employment. (Def.'s Ex. 17.) The notice referenced the canine-handler incident and also 27 set forth the facts regarding the Avalon incident. With respect to the Avalon incident, the 28 letter explained:

1 Our conclusion is that you lied to SDTI during the course of our investigation 2 into this incident, by denying that you left a voice mail message for Mr. Brown 3 saying that your [sic] were in law enforcement, and a police officer, and that 4 your department would be investigating this matter. . . . Misrepresenting 5 yourself as a police officer was false, and his [sic] irreparably damaged your 6 credibility. SDTI can no longer trust you to act as a Code Compliance 7 Inspector, since it is beyond dispute that you will lie and misrepresent yourself.
 Since your job for SDTI includes issuing citations and making arrests, yet we know that you will lie when you see fit, you are not qualified for your position, and we have no choice but to terminate your employment. In your position you may be called upon to testify in court. Since we now know that you may testify falsely in order to obtain a result that you desire, we cannot allow you to continue in your position.

8 (Def's Ex. 17, p, 681.) The notice explained that Womack had violated SDTI rules and 9 procedures including Section 1.4.7 (falsification of statements or records), SOP 600.1(1) 10 (violation of law), SOP 600.1(4) (unbecoming conduct), and SOP 600.1(15) (abuse of 11 position).

12 On October 10, 2007, SDTI held a Skelly¹ hearing for Womack. (Greenland Decl. ¶ 13 8.) Mary Jane Greenland, Manager of Human Resources for MTS, was the Hearing Officer, 14 and Burke and Savoy were present on behalf of SDTI. (Def.'s Ex. 11.) Womack was 15 represented by counsel at the hearing. (Greenland Decl. ¶ 8.) After the hearing, Burke, 16 Greenland, and legal counsel for SDTI agreed that termination was appropriate. (Id.) In a 17 termination letter dated October 11, 2007, Greenland explained that SDTI had made the 18 decision to terminate Womack's employment "for the reasons set forth in the Notice of 19 Intention to Terminate Employment, relating to your misrepresenting yourself to a third party 20 as a San Diego Police Officer and lying to SDTI management during the investigation into 21 this incident." (Def.'s Ex. 11.)

22 Under the Collective Bargaining Agreement ("CBA") (Def.'s Ex. 12) between SDTI and 23 the Transit Enforcement Officers' Association of San Diego ("the union"), Womack filed a 25 ¹ In Skelly v. State Personnel Board, 15 Cal. 3d 194 (1975), the California Supreme 26 Court discussed what procedural due process requirements the state must comply with 27 before dismissing a permanent employee. The Court explained that even though due 28 process does not require the state to provide the employee with a full trial-type evidentiary hearing before the disciplinary action is imposed, at minimum, preremoval safeguards "must include notice of the proposed action, the reasons therefor, a copy of the charges and materials upon which the action is based, and the right to respond, either orally or in writing, to the authority initially imposing discipline." Id. at 215.

1 grievance alleging that his termination was not for just cause. (Def.'s Ex. 13.) The CBA 2 provides that if a grievance cannot be resolved informally or through a nonbinding mediation, 3 the dispute shall be submitted to final and binding arbitration. (CBA, Article 8.)

4 The arbitration was held before David B. Hart on December 10, 2008 and January 23, 5 2009. (Betts Decl. ¶ 6.) Womack was represented by counsel. (Id.) Womack testified, and 6 his counsel gave an opening and closing statement, cross-examined the witnesses, and 7 made evidentiary objections. (Id.; Def.'s Ex. 4.) Womack's counsel argued that the 8 termination was unfair because, among other things, SDTI lacked clear policies regarding 9 discipline, and SDTI improperly considered the canine-handler incident, for which Womack 10 had already been disciplined. (Def.'s Ex. 6.)

11 In a thirteen-page decision, Arbitrator Hart held that Womack's termination was for 12 just cause. (Def.'s Ex. 3.) The arbitrator found that the evidence established that Womack 13 misrepresented himself as a police officer, fraudulently obtained confidential information 14 from Avalon, and was not truthful during SDTI's investigation of the matter. (Def.'s Ex. 3, p.
 15 77.) The arbitrator also found that because of the seriousness of the incident in relation to 16 the trust placed in him by SDTI, SDTI did not abuse its discretion in imposing the ultimate 17 punishment of termination. (Def.'s Ex. 3, p. 78.)

19 II. STANDARD

20 Summary judgment is appropriate under Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil 21 Procedure if the moving party demonstrates the absence of a genuine issue of material fact 22 and entitlement to judgment as a matter of law. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322 23 (1986). A fact is material when, under the governing substantive law, it could affect the 24 outcome of the case. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986); Freeman 25 v. Arpaio, 125 F.3d 732, 735 (9th Cir. 1997). A dispute is genuine if a reasonable jury could 26 return a verdict for the nonmoving party. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 248.

27 A party seeking summary judgment always bears the initial burden of establishing the 28 absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Celotex, 477 U.S. at 323. The moving party

1 can satisfy this burden in two ways: (1) by presenting evidence that negates an essential 2 element of the nonmoving party's case; or (2) by demonstrating that the nonmoving party 3 failed to establish an essential element of the nonmoving party's case on which the 4 nonmoving party bears the burden of proving at trial. Id. at 322-23. "Disputes over irrelevant 5 or unnecessary facts will not preclude a grant of summary judgment." T.W. Elec. Serv., Inc.
 6 v. Pacific Elec. Contractors Ass'n, 809 F.2d 626, 630 (9th Cir. 1987).

7 Once the moving party establishes the absence of genuine issues of material fact, the 8 burden shifts to the nonmoving party to set forth facts showing that a genuine issue of 9 disputed fact remains. Celotex, 477 U.S. at 314. The nonmoving party cannot oppose a 10 properly supported summary judgment motion by "rest[ing] on mere allegations or denials 11 of his pleadings." Anderson, 477 U.S. at 256. When ruling on a summary judgment motion, 12 the court must view all inferences drawn from the underlying facts in the light most favorable 13 to the nonmoving party. Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 14 587 (1986).

15

16 III. DISCUSSION

17 In his First Amended Complaint ("FAC"), Womack, who is proceeding pro se, names 18 as defendants MTS, SDTI, individual MTS/SDTI employees, the Transit Enforcement 19 Officers Association of San Diego, and Terrance Joseph (identified as President of the 20 union). Defendants MTS and SDTI move for summary judgment, or in the alternative, partial 21 summary judgment. It appears that the other defendants have not been served.

22 Construing the FAC liberally,² the FAC asserts the following legal claims against MTS 23 and SDTI: (1) violation of SDTI Rules and Instructions; (2) violation of 18 U.S.C. § 241 - 24 Conspiracy Against Rights; (3) violation of 18 U.S.C. § 242 - Deprivation of Rights; (4) 25 violation of Cal. Penal Code § 118 - Perjury; (5) violation of Cal. Penal Code § 422.6 - 26 Interference with Civil Rights; (6) violation of rights under NLRB v. Weingarten, 420 U.S. 251

27

28 ² The body of the FAC does not include numbered causes of action. Although the caption page lists a number of causes of action, it appears that this list does not include all of the claims referenced in the body of the complaint.

1 (1975); (7) wrongful termination/ termination without just cause; (8) hybrid LMRA § 301/fair 2 representation claim; (9) slander; (10) violation of the First Amendment of the U.S.
 3 Constitution - Freedom of Speech; (11) violation of the California Constitution, Article I, 4 Section 2 - Freedom of Speech; (12) violation of the First Amendment of the United States
 5 Constitution - Right to Privacy; (13) violation of the California Constitution Article I, Section 6 I, Right to Privacy; (14) violation of 5 U.S.C. § 552a, Privacy Act of 1973; (15) violation of the 7 Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution - Due Process; (16) violation of 8 Cal. Civil Code § 52.1 (interference with exercise or enjoyment of constitutional rights).

9 As discussed below, the Court finds that there are no triable issues of material fact 10 with respect to Womack's claims. Therefore, Defendants are entitled to summary judgment.
 11

12 A. SDTI Internal Rules

13 The FAC alleges that Burke, Savoy, and Greenland violated SDTI Rules and 14 Instructions. Although it is possible that the violation of SDTI policies and procedures could, 15 in some circumstances, be evidence of the violation of a statute or other legal duty, Womack 16 cannot maintain a free-standing legal claim for the violation of SDTI internal rules and 17 policies.

18

19 B. Violation of Various Criminal Statutes

20 Plaintiff brings claims under federal and California criminal statutes, specifically, 18 21 U.S.C. § 241 (Conspiracy Against Rights), 18 U.S.C. § 242 (Deprivations of Rights), Cal.
 22 Penal Code § 118 (Perjury), and Cal. Penal Code § 422.6 (Interference with Exercise of Civil 23 Rights). None of these criminal provisions provide for civil enforcement or imply that a civil 24 remedy is available. Therefore, Womack's claims under these statutes fail as a matter of 25 law. See Aldabe v. Aldabe, 616 F.2d 1089, 1092 (9th Cir. 1980) (explaining that 18 U.S.C.
 26 §§ 241 and 242 "provide no basis for civil liability" and affirming dismissal of claims); Pollock 27 v. University of Southern California, 122 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1429 (2003) (explaining that 28 perjury is a criminal wrong and that there is no civil cause of action for "perjury").

1 C. Violation of Weingarten Rights

2 Womack alleges that Defendants violated his rights under NLRB v. Weingarten, 420 3 U.S. 251 (1975), by failing to tell him of his union rights during his May 4, 2007 meeting with 4 Burke and Savoy. (FAC at 6.) In Weingarten, the Supreme Court interpreted Section 7 of 5 the National Labor Relations Act, 29 U.S.C. § 157, to include the right of an employee to 6 have a union representative present at meetings with an employer when the meeting is 7 investigatory, the employee reasonably expects the meeting will result in disciplinary action, 8 and the employee requests representation. Id. at 257-58. Womack's claim that his 9 Weingarten rights were violated allege unfair labor practices that fall within the exclusive 10 jurisdiction of the NLRB. See Dellbridge v. Acme Food Corp., 2010 WL 148803, at * 3 11 (D.N.J. Jan. 14, 2010) (holding that plaintiff's claim that his civil rights pursuant to 12 Weingarten were violated was preempted and dismissing claim as a matter of law).
 13 Therefore, Defendants are entitled to summary judgment on this claim.

14

15 D. Wrongful Termination/Termination without Just Cause

16 Womack alleges that he was wrongfully terminated. Womack claims that Burke and 17 Savoy made false allegations against him and that he was punished for conduct taking place 18 in the privacy of his own home.

19 Whether Womack's termination was "wrongful," is governed by the CBA, which 20 requires "just cause" for termination. A suit for breach of a collective bargaining agreement 21 is governed exclusively by federal law under § 301(a) of the LMRA, 29 U.S.C. § 185(a).
 22 Young v. Anthony's Fish Grottos, Inc., 830 F.2d 993, 997 (9th Cir. 1987). "The preemptive 23 force of section 301 is so powerful as to displace entirely any state claim based on a 24 collective bargaining agreement . . . and any state claim whose outcome depends on 25 analysis of the terms of the agreement." Id. (citations omitted). Therefore, any claim by 26 Womack that he was terminated without just cause is preempted by the LMRA. See 27 O'Sullivan v. Longview Fibre Co., 993 F. Supp. 743 (N.D. Cal. 1997) (holding that 28 employee's breach of contract claim alleging that the employer did not have just cause to 1 discharge him was preempted by the LMRA).

2 To the extent Womack seeks to bring a claim for wrongful termination in violation of 3 public policy – i.e., a Tamency³ cause of action – such a claim is barred by California’s 4 Government Claims Act, Cal. Gov’t Code § 810, et seq., which abolishes common law tort 5 liability for public entities. See Miklosy v. Regents of the University of California, 44 Cal. 4th 6 876, 900 (2008) (holding that because a Tamency cause of action is a common law, judicially 7 created tort, § 815 bars Tamency actions against public entities).

9 E. Hybrid LMRA § 301 Claim

10 When a union representing an employee during grievance or arbitration proceedings 11 breaches its duty of fair representation, an employee may bring suit against both the 12 employer and the union under LMRA § 301, notwithstanding the outcome or finality of the 13 grievance or arbitration proceeding. DelCostello v. Int’l Bhd. of Teamsters, 462 U.S. 165 14 (1983). Although the FAC does not cite to § 301, the FAC does allege that the union 15 breached its duty of fair representation and that Womack was wrongfully terminated by 16 SDTI. Therefore, the Court liberally construes the FAC as asserting a hybrid § 301 claim.

17 To prevail on a hybrid § 301 claim, the employee must prove both that the union 18 breached its duty of fair representation and that the employer breached the collective 19 bargaining agreement. Bliesner v. Commc’n Workers of America, 464 F.3d 910, 913 (2006).
 20 Nothing requires the district court to decide the fair representation question first. Id. at 914.

21 The Court finds that Womack has failed to raise a triable issue of material fact on his 22 claim that SDTI breached the CBA by terminating him without just cause. The evidence 23 before the Court establishes that SDTI terminated Womack for misrepresenting himself as 24 a police officer. The taped voicemail message shows that Womack purposefully led Brown 25 to believe that he was a police officer. In the recorded message, Womack stated:

26 Hello, my name is Robert Womack. I’m the son-in-law of Mary LaDuc and we 27 need to talk to you about what happened here. We’re finding some more problems here at Mary’s house and I was – my understanding is she – you’re 28 ³ Tamency v. Atlantic Richfield Co., 27 Cal. 3d 167 (1980).

1 going to come over here today to return some money that was stolen from 2 Mary. I want to tell you I'm also with the law enforcement. I'm a police officer
3 and I'm going to be conducting an investigation with my department. I think 4 the best thing for you to do as soon as you can is get ahold of me or Dodie as 5 soon as possible. I'm going to try and page you and then I will return your 6 phone call to you.

7 (Womack Dep. 126:13-127:9; Brown Decl. ¶ 3.) Womack argues that he never said that he 8 was a “San Diego police officer” or that he was going to conduct a “criminal investigation.”
9 Womack also argues that he was in or with law enforcement because he issued citations 10 and made arrests. The Court is not persuaded by Womack’s semantic distinctions. The 11 clear import of the message was that Womack was a law enforcement officer who could 12 conduct a criminal investigation. He was not a “police officer,” and he did not have a 13 “department” authorized to investigate thefts.

14 At the arbitration, Womack admitted misrepresenting that he was a member of law 15 enforcement. (Arbitration Transcript (Def.’s Ex. 4) 341:5-25.) He admitted that he was not 16 a member of law enforcement and that he made a mistake: “It was a dumb thing to do, but 17 I was very worried for Mary. I have no excuse. It was – I should have never said those 18 words.” (Id. at 342:8-10.)

19 With respect to Womack’s telephone conversation with Brown and Baratti, which was 20 not recorded, Womack denies saying that he would be dusting for fingerprints or that he 21 would charge Brown and Baratti criminally. He also denies requesting background check 22 information from Avalon. At the arbitration, Womack testified that he did not request or 23 receive the background information. (Arbitration Transcript 346:16-18.)

24 Although Womack disputes the details regarding what happened after he left the 25 voicemail message, the fact remains that Womack misrepresented himself as a law 26 enforcement officer. As noted in the Notice of Intent to Terminate Employment, Womack’s 27 acts of dishonesty raised concerns regarding his ability to perform his job: “Since your job 28 for SDTI includes issuing citations and making arrests, yet we know that you will lie when you see fit, you are not qualified for your position, and we have no choice but to terminate your employment. In your position you may be called upon to testify in court. Since we now know

1 that you may testify falsely in order to obtain a result that you desire, we cannot allow you 2 to continue in your position." (Def's Ex. 17, p, 681.)

3 Based on the undisputed evidence, there was just cause for Womack's termination.
 4 The Court agrees with the arbitrator that Womack, as a public employee, owed "unique 5 duties of loyalty, trust, and candor" to his employer and to the public at large, and that his 6 violation of the trust placed in him constituted just cause for termination. Accordingly, SDTI 7 did not terminate him in violation of the CBA, and his hybrid § 301 claim fails.

9 F. Slander

10 Although not entirely clear, it appears that Womack's claim of slander is based on 11 alleged lies told by Burke, Savoy, and SDTI's attorney. Womack claims that the Notice of 12 Intent to Terminate Employment signed by Burke was filled with "false allegation." (FAC at 13 8.) Womack also claims that Kasper, an attorney for MTS, fabricated claims against 14 Womack during an unemployment benefits hearing. (FAC at 9-10.) In addition, Womack 15 alleges that Burke and Savoy committed perjury during the arbitration hearing. (FAC at 12.)

16 SDTI is immune from liability for the alleged false statements identified above.
 17 California Civil Code § 47(b) provides that a privileged publication or broadcast includes one 18 made "[i]n any (1) legislative proceeding, (2) judicial proceeding, (3) in any other official 19 proceeding authorized by law, or (4) in the initiation or course of any other proceeding 20 authorized by law and reviewable pursuant to Chapter 2 (commencing with Section 1084) 21 of Title 1 of Part 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure." Any statements made during the 22 arbitration and unemployment benefits hearing are privileged under § 47(b). See Komarova 23 v. National Credit Acceptance, Inc., 175 Cal. App. 4th 324, 336 (2009) (explaining that the 24 privilege under § 47(b) covers communications made in the course of private contractual 25 arbitrations); Ghebreselassie v. Coleman Security Serv., 829 F.2d 892, 898 (9th Cir. 1987) 26 (holding that employer's report to the state unemployment office fell within the privilege of 27 § 47(b)).

28 Furthermore, statements made by Burke or Savoy in the context of disciplinary 1 proceedings or investigations preparatory to such proceedings are privileged under Cal.

 2 Gov't Code § 821.6. Section 821.6 provides: "A public employee is not liable for injury 3 caused by his instituting or prosecuting any judicial or administrative proceeding within the 4 scope of his employment, even if he acts maliciously and without probable cause."
 5 California courts have interpreted § 821.6 to encompass acts done to institute and prosecute 6 disciplinary proceedings. See Kemmerer v. County of Fresno, 200 Cal. App. 3d 1426, 1437 7 (1988) (holding that County and County employees were immune from tort liability for acts 8 done in connection with investigating plaintiff's conduct, instituting dismissal proceedings 9 against the plaintiff, and participating in civil service commission hearings); Paterson v. City 10 of Los Angeles, 174 Cal. App. 4th 1393, 1404-05 (2009) (holding that the City and police 11 sergeant were immune for tort liability for investigation of misconduct complaints and 12 institution and prosecution of disciplinary proceedings).

13

14 G. Freedom of Speech

15 Womack claims that Defendants violated his right to free speech under the United 16 States Constitution and the California Constitution (Article I, Section 2). Womack contends 17 that Defendants violated his free speech rights by disciplining him for telephone 18 conversations he had in the privacy of his own home. Womack's claim fails because his 19 speech was not protected.

20 Womack was a public employee. "Public employees . . . often occupy trusted 21 positions in society. When they speak out, they can express views that contravene 22 governmental policies or impair the proper performance of governmental functions." Garcetti 23 v. Ceballos, 547 U.S. 410, 419 (2006). Thus, a government entity has broader discretion 24 to restrict speech when it acts in its role as an employer. Id. at 418.

25 In considering a free speech claim of a public employee, courts carefully balance "the 26 interests of the public employee, as a citizen, in commenting upon matters of public concern 27 and the interest of the State, as an employer, in promoting the efficiency of the public 28 services it performs through its employees." Huppert v. City of Pittsburg, 574 F.3d 696, 702

1 (9th Cir. 2009). “So long as employees are speaking as citizens about matters of public 2 concern, they must face only those speech restrictions that are necessary for their 3 employers to operate efficiently and effectively.” Garcetti, 547 U.S. at 419. If, on the other 4 hand, the employee’s speech does not address a matter of public concern, the speech is not 5 protected by the United States Constitution or California Constitution. Brownfield v. Yakima, 6 612 F.3d 1140, 1147 (9th Cir. 2010) (concluding that employee’s speech was personal and 7 not protected by the First Amendment); Kaye v. Board of Trustees, 179 Cal. App. 4th 48, 56-8 59 (2010) (holding that Garcetti applies to free speech claims under the California 9 Constitution by public employees).

10 The essential question is “whether the speech addressed matters of ‘public’ as 11 opposed to ‘personal’ interest.” Anthoine v. North Central Counties Consortium, 605 F.3d 12 740, 748 (9th Cir. 2010). Examples of public concern include unlawful conduct by a 13 government employee, the misuse of public funds, or inefficiency in managing and operating 14 government entities. Id.

15 Here, the speech concerned a purely personal matter - the care provided by Avalon 16 to a family friend. Furthermore, the speech implicated the ability of SDTI to operate 17 efficiently and effectively. Therefore, Womack’s speech was not protected, and his free 18 speech claims fail.

19

20 H. Invasion of Privacy

21 Womack claims that Defendants violated his right to privacy under the United States 22 Constitution as well as the California Constitution (Article I, Section I). Womack claims that 23 his privacy rights were violated because (1) Defendants disciplined him for telephone 24 conversations that took place in the privacy of his home; (2) Burke asked for private records 25 to prove that he entered into a rental agreement; and (3) Defendants told Avalon that 26 Womack was terminated as a result of misrepresenting himself as a police officer.

27 With respect to Womack’s claim under the California Constitution, Defendants are 28 immune from liability under Cal. Gov’t Code § 821.6. As discussed above, § 821.6 provides

1 absolute immunity for acts taken in connection with investigating, instituting, and prosecuting 2 disciplinary proceedings. This privilege applies even to a constitutionally based privacy 3 cause of action. Jacob B. v. County of Shasta, 40 Cal. 4th 948, 961 (2007). Defendants' 4 imposition of discipline for Womack misrepresenting himself as a police officer and the 5 investigation by Burke into whether Womack intentionally lied about living in a house clearly 6 fall within the scope of § 821.6.

7 As for SDTI telling Avalon that Womack was terminated, the conveying of this 8 information was also within the context of Womack's disciplinary proceedings. SDTI was 9 informing the complainant of the results of the investigation. See Citizens Capital Corp. v.
 10 Spohn, 133 Cal. App. 3d 887, 888 (1982) (holding that defendants were immune under § 11 821.6 because the communication at issue "merely reported the results of official 12 investigations of plaintiffs and the revocation action based on those investigations.").
 13 Furthermore, it appears that the conveying of this information occurred in conjunction with 14 SDTI preparing for arbitration. Brown learned that Womack had been terminated at the time 15 that SDTI asked Brown to be a witness in the arbitration proceeding. (Brown Decl. ¶ 7.)
 16 Therefore, the absolute privilege of § 821.6 applies.⁴

17 Womack's privacy claim under the First Amendment also fails. Defendants could 18 discipline Womack for telephone conversations he had in the privacy of his own home for 19 the reasons discussed in connection with Womack's freedom of speech claim. See Dible 20 v. City of Chandler, 515 F.3d 918, 930 n. 8 (9th Cir. 2008) (explaining that although there are 21 some limits to a governmental entity's investigation of its employees, "we have never gone 22 so far as to suggest that those limits are exceeded where, as here, the question is directly 23 related to the employee's connection to an otherwise unprotected activity that affects the 24 functions and mission of the employer.").

25 With respect to Burke's request for a rental agreement or copy of a canceled check, 26

27 ⁴ In addition, the qualified privilege set forth in Cal. Civil Code 47(c) applies. Section 28 47(c) extends a conditional privilege to "a communication, without malice, to a person interested therein . . . by one who is also interested." The outcome of the investigation into Avalon's complaint was of mutual interest to both SDTI and Avalon.

1 Womack made the documents relevant to his employment by falsely claiming that he lived 2 in a house during the canine-handler interview. Burke had a legitimate reason for wanting 3 to confirm that Womack had entered into a rental agreement and was not purposefully lying, 4 and it was Womack's choice whether to produce the proof or be disciplined. The Court 5 does not see how, under these circumstances, Womack's right to privacy was invaded.

6 The Court also finds that Womack did not have a constitutional right of privacy with 7 respect to the fact of his termination. Courts have rejected similar arguments from public 8 employees. See Mraz v. County of Lehigh, 862 F. Supp. 1344, 1349-50 (E.D. Pa. 1994) 9 (holding that county defendants' release of the fact of the plaintiff's termination did not violate 10 his right to privacy because the defendants merely reported an official act of the county); 11 Moran v. Southern Regional High School Dist. Bd. of Educ., 2006 WL 436201 (D.N.J. Feb.
 12 17, 2006) (rejecting claim of plaintiff that releasing information related to settlement 13 agreement and the circumstances of the plaintiff's resignation to the press violated his 14 constitutional rights to privacy).

15

16 I. Federal Privacy Act of 1973

17 Womack alleges that Defendants violated his rights under the Federal Privacy Act of 18 1973, 5 U.S.C. § 552a(b), by disclosing facts about his termination to Avalon. The Privacy 19 Act applies only to "agencies" as defined by 5 U.S.C. § 551(1) and 5 U.S.C. § 552(f)(1), and 20 does not encompass state agencies or bodies.⁵ St. Michael's Convalescent Hospital v. State 21 of California, 643 F.2d 1369, 1373 (9th Cir. 1981). Defendants are state agencies. MTS 22 was created by Cal. Pub. Util. Code § 120050. SDTI is a non-profit public benefit 23 membership corporation, whose sole member is MTS. (Lorenzan Decl. ¶¶ 2-6.)
 24 Accordingly, the Privacy Act has no applicability here.

25

26 ⁵ Section 551(1) defines "agency" as "each authority of the Government of the United 27 States, whether or not it is within or subject to review by another agency," with certain 28 enumerated exceptions. Section 552(f)(1) provides that "agency," as defined in § 551(1), includes "any executive department, military department, Government corporation, Government controlled corporation, or other establishment in the executive branch of the Government (including the Executive Office of the President), or any independent regulatory agency"

1 J. Due Process Rights

2 Womack claims that he was deprived of due process in connection with his 3 termination. Womack argues in his papers that the result of the proceedings was 4 predetermined because the arbitrator was biased and there was a conspiracy among Burke, 5 Savoy, Greenland, and his attorney to carry out Burke's personal vendetta against him, 6 However, Womack presents no evidence in this regard. The evidence in the record 7 establishes that Womack was afforded all the process to which he was entitled.

8 In Cleveland Bd. of Educ. v. Loudermill, 470 U.S. 532, 546 (1985), the Supreme Court 9 held that where state law provides for a full post-termination hearing, prior to termination, a 10 tenured public employee is entitled to oral or written notice of the charges against him, an 11 explanation of the employer's evidence, and an opportunity to present his side of the story.
 12 The opportunity to present reasons may be either in person or in writing. Id.

13 Under California law, preremoval safeguards must include, at minimum, "notice of the 14 proposed action, the reasons therefor, a copy of the charges and materials upon which the 15 action is based, and the right to respond, either orally or in writing, to the authority initially 16 imposing discipline. Skelly v. State Personnel Board, 15 Cal. 3d 194, 215 (1975). A public 17 employee is also entitled to a full evidentiary hearing after the disciplinary action is imposed.
 18 Id.

19 In this case, Womack was given written notice of the charges against, including an 20 explanation of the facts upon which the employer was relying. Womack was also given a 21 Skelly hearing, during which he had the opportunity to present his side of the story. Womack 22 takes issue with the fact that the hearing was before Greenland, Burke, and Savoy.
 23 However, at this point in time, Womack was not entitled to a hearing before an impartial 24 adjudicator. He was entitled to an opportunity to present his side of the story to SDTI.

25 After Womack was terminated, he enjoyed a full evidentiary hearing in the form of a 26 final and binding arbitration. Womack was represented by counsel, who gave an opening 27 and closing statement, put Womack on the stand, cross-examined the witnesses, and made 28 evidentiary objections.

1 Although Womack is unhappy with the results of his disciplinary proceedings and 2 believes that he was wronged, Womack has not presented any evidence that he was 3 deprived of his due process rights. Therefore, Defendants are entitled to summary judgment 4 on Womack's due process claim.

6 || K. Cal. Civ. Code § 52.1

7 Womack brings a claims under Cal. Civ. Code § 52.1, which provides for a civil cause 8 of action “[i]f a person or persons, whether or not acting under color of law, interferes by 9 threats, intimidation, or coercion, or attempts to interfere by threats, intimidation, or coercion, 10 with the exercise or enjoyment by any individual or individuals of rights secured by the 11 Constitution or laws of the United States, or of the rights secured by the Constitution or laws 12 of this state” Because the Court has granted summary judgment in favor of Defendants 13 on Womack’s constitutional claims, there is no predicate constitutional violation, and 14 Womack’s § 52.1 claim fails.

IV. CONCLUSION

17 For the reasons discussed above, MTS and SDTI's motion for summary judgment is 18 GRANTED. Although Womack has not served the remaining defendants, Womack's claims 19 against them would fail for the same reasons. Therefore, the Court orders the Clerk to enter 20 judgment against Womack and in favor of all of the defendants.
